Accidents Blamed on Wet Roads

Two persons, including a Torrance police officer, escaped serious injury early yesterday when they were involved in separate accidents on rain-slickened city streets.

Police Officer Clifford Smith, 35, fell out of his car after he lost control of the vehicle while turning onto Hawthorne Boulevard from Tallman Street about 2:40 a.m., it was reported. Smith told investigating officers he had just made his turn when his vehicle began "fishtailing" and hit the curb. At that point, Smith said, his elbow hit the door handle and he fell from the car.

Smith's car hit a truck which was parked on a service road at Hawthorne Boulevard and Bulova Street.

The second man sustained minor injuries when his car struck a palm tree at Carson and Acacia streets about 2 a.m. yesterday.

David R. Miller, 24, of 741 told police he lost control of his car when he swerved to avoid an oncoming vehicle. He said he would seek private medical attention.

SOUTH BAY

CITIZEN OF THE MONTH

Dwight Crum cares for the kids — the safety, the skill, the survival of surfers that dot the South Bay shoreline.

With devotion that goes far beyond his official duties as Captain of the Los Angeles County Lifeguards, he advises, counsels, and concerns himself with individual successes as well as the whole surfing scene. He was the impetus behind the establishment of safe surfing areas and hours, surfing clubs and festivals. It all adds up to good, clean, healthy surfing. Good beaches and active sports are some of the things that make the South Bay so special. People like Dwight Crum care about keeping it that way.
